How To: Riot!

It has come to the attention of the Rivendell staff that the people of the UK have, for one reason or another, forgotten how to Riot! In this dangerous era of universally deployed surveillance cameras in the cities, of the soldiers of sorrow using any and every device, chemical and weapon at their disposal to disperse public gatherings, of helicopters buzzing overhead equipped with 1 million candle 'Night Sun' searchlights, of national newspapers being used as virtual police line ups to entrap heroic combatants, the eager freedom fighter must go into the field ready to face a daunting array of obstacles if she is to do her job and go home on the same day. Now that 'The Great Insult' has become law, many people are predicting widespread demonstrations, riots and public gatherings. If you absolutely insist on demonstrating and rioting, take care to ensure that your name and face won't get on some shit list without the enemy having to make you a physical prisoner. Prevention is the best medicine!

It is essential to have your head protected by a strong helmet. The batons of oppression will be flying around you like swarming bees in a tornado. Any good motorcycle helmet will do, as long as it is seated firmly on your head. A helmet will also protect your hair from getting doused with identification dye.

The agents of deception are using teargas, pepper gas and water cannon against the forces of freedom. Goggles must be worn to maximize your battle life in the event of a chemical attack. Dark lenses are preferred, to hide your eyes from the video-van and the hidden telescopic lenses.

Your face has got to be completely covered. Remember the double page spreads in 'The Sun', showing the faces of the noble warriors of Trafalgar Square? Not only will your mask thwart the cameras, but you will need an air filter so that you will be able to breathe when the chemical weapons are deployed. Don't leave home without one!

Wear a strong belt. If its got a big buckle, it can always be used as a weapon. Belts can be used to carry your 'tools'; for instance a pair of wire-cutters, a hammer, a screwdriver or any other tool with a handle. Its clunk click every trip!

Was Granddad in WW2? Does he have any of those 'special souvenir eggs' lying around in the loft? Even if they are duds, they will scare the shit out of the enemies of freedom when they land amongst them in the heat of pitched battle!!

Wear a shirt that you are prepared to get rid of permanently. The agents of deceipt are using chemical dyes sprayed from high pressure hoses that stain the flesh of the heroes of the struggle for later identification and apprehension. These dyes remain on your skin for at least a week, so make sure that you are covered from head to toe to avoid getting marked.

Bring all of the tools with you that you're going to need: don't rely on finding weapons on site. The Germans have demonstrated the efficiency of the catapult; it can be easily concealed, it's highly effective against man, beast (horse) and glass, and the ammo (ball bearings or marbles) is cheap and can be carried in the hundreds with no effort. The models that use surgical rubber tubing are the best. David and Goliath anyone?
